About Dayton crime rates

With a crime rate of 68 per one thousand residents, Dayton has one of the highest crime rates in America compared to all communities of all sizes - from the smallest towns to the very largest cities. One's chance of becoming a victim of either violent or property crime here is one in 15. Within Ohio, more than 97% of the communities have a lower crime rate than Dayton.
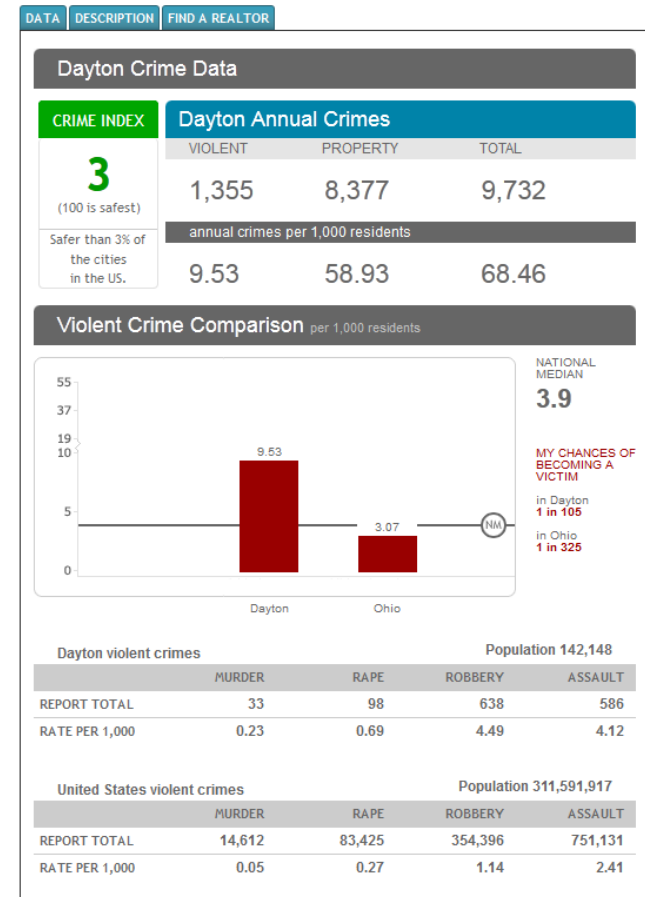

Separately, it is always interesting and important to compare a city's crime rate with those of similarly sized communities - a fair comparison as larger cities tend to have more crime. NeighborhoodScout has done just that. With a population of 142,148, Dayton has a combined rate of violent and property crime that is very high compared to other places of similar population size.

Regardless of whether Dayton does well or poorly compared to all other cities and towns in the US of all sizes, compared to places with a similar population, it fares badly. Few other communities of this size have a crime rate as high as Dayton.

Cost of Crime

The cost of crime is significant. The national Institute of Justice has sponsored many studies on the cost of crime to a community. Using the results of one of these studies conducted by the Rand Center on Quality Policing the cost of crime in Dayton is calculated to be $480M per year. This is calculated by multiplying the number of crimes in a given category by the cost of crime from the study.

- With a population of 142,148, Dayton has a combined rate of violent and property crime that is very high compared to other places of similar population size. Regardless of whether Dayton does well or poorly compared to all other cities and towns in the US of all sizes, compared to places with a similar population, it fares badly. Few other communities of this size have a crime rate as high as Dayton.

- The crime data that NeighborhoodScout used for this analysis are the seven offenses from the uniform crime reports, collected by the FBI from 17,000 local law enforcement agencies, and include both violent and property crimes, combined.

- Now let us turn to take a look at how Dayton does for violent crimes specifically, and then how it does for property crimes. This is important because the overall crime rate can be further illuminated by understanding if violent crime or property crimes (or both) are the major contributors to the general rate of crime in Dayton.

- For Dayton, we found that the violent crime rate is one of the highest in the nation, across communities of all sizes (both large and small). Violent offenses tracked included forcible rape, murder and non-negligent manslaughter, armed robbery, and aggravated assault, including assault with a deadly weapon. According to NeighborhoodScout's analysis of FBI reported crime data, your chance of becoming a victim of one of these crimes in Dayton is one in 105.

- Significantly, based on the number of murders reported by the FBI and the number of residents living in the city, NeighborhoodScout's analysis shows that Dayton experiences one of the higher murder rates in the nation when compared with cities and towns for all sizes of population, from the largest to the smallest.

- In addition, NeighborhoodScout found that a lot of the crime that takes place in Dayton is property crime. Property crimes that are tracked for this analysis are burglary, larceny over fifty dollars, motor vehicle theft, and arson. In Dayton, your chance of becoming a victim of a property crime is one in 17, which is a rate of 59 per one thousand population.

- Importantly, we found that Dayton has one of the highest rates of motor vehicle theft in the nation according to our analysis of FBI crime data. This is compared to communities of all sizes, from the smallest to the largest. In fact, your chance of getting your car stolen if you live in Dayton is one in 225.
